CHAILESTON, W. VAI, Feb. 3.—In both Houses of tyl Legislature to-day a resolution was soptied instructing the Finance Committe to report a bill making an appropriation for creeting a West Virginia building on the ter-centennial grounds at Jametown. The propriety of taking part in hat enterprise was suggested in Governor-White's message and has met with gineral favor among members of the Legislature and it is thought three will be o danger of its being defeated. The gaolution recites at length the object of me exposition, together, with the natural literest—the people of West Virginia haw, in the matter, There was no objection offered to the instructions being given the committees, even the watch-dogs of the treasury having been inlied to step by the reasoning of the resolution.

Henrico Negroes to Hang Together on March 16th.

For the first time in his judicial career Judge R. Carter Scott, of the Henrico Circuit Court, was yesterday called upon to pass the death sentence upon a pris oner, when, with tearful eyes, wo negroes, recently convicted of atroclous crimes in his court, that according to the verdict of the juries by which they were tried, they would have to hang on March 16th. The ordeal was evidently the most painful in the public career of the distinguished jurist, and it was manifest that he approached the unpleasant task with great reluctance.

task with great reluctance.

It is with great reluctance.

The negroes were Peter Dancey and Edward Austin, convicted, respectively, or murder and erimmal assault, the punishment in each case having been fixed to take Coburn's horse and buggy for debt, Yoho threatened to shoot the officer, but while he was going for his pistol Taylor selzed the team and drove off.

DISASTROUS WRECK.

· A Painful Duty.

When Austin arose the judge asked him if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him. "Thank God, I have made peace with my Maker," he said. "I am willing and ready to go. I have been wicked and sintul, I know. When I leave this place I will go to rest. I am willing and ready to go. There was a silence which was almost deathlike, and it was several minutes before Judge Scott could speak. Recovering himself partially, the strong, robust judge said with faltering voice and tearful eyes: "Edward Austin, you have been tried by a jury provided in accordance with the law. You have been defended by counsel who are able. Everything has been done that the law requires. "That Jury, in accordance with the evidence in the case, has determined that you committed a most grievous crime upon a young girl. And I must say that after listening to the evidence in that case, that the court, had he been on the jury, would have come to the same verdict. That jury found you guilty as charged in this indictment and fixed your punishment at death. "I have now to perform my duty, and

And may God have mercy upon your soul." Dancey was next ordered to stand and when asked what he had to say, declared he did not intend to kill the woman and was surprised at the verdict.

The court then proceeded to sentence him under the same trying circumstances and fixed the date of his hanging for March 16th.

play is "A Wife's Strategy," which may sound well enough, but which is certainly sound well enough, but which is certainly not justified by the plot of the plece.

The play deals with politics, giving side lights on the manipulations as practiced by the 'fings' and the "machine." The disclosures, however, are not set forth with sufficient dramatic force to make them interesting to an audience. Strangely enough, all the action that the play has centras in the use of those great inventions for the transmission of messages—the telephone and the telegraph. Miss Anglin, in the final scene of the second act, when she carries on a conversation with her husband over the telephone, does a splendid bit of acting, and for one has the stage alone—she held the addence with the intenseness of the scene, and when the curtain fell in the climax she received several calls. The last act is fairly alive with dramatic force from the first to the last scene.

The company is an excellent one. Miss Anglin, in the emotional scenes, is most effective, and she was rendered able support by Mr. John E. Kellard, who was cast as Hon. Richard Alian. Mr. Charles M. Burtli as Billy Thompson, the company manager, looked as real as though he had just stepped from party headquarters. Mrs. E. A. Eberle gave a most natural character impersonation as the lovable spinster. The play will be repeated twice to-day.

NERVOUS PEOPLE

A compound of three strengthgiving ingredients

GELERY The netural Nervine.
It strengthens the whole nervous system.

BEEF In extract form—strengthens, stimulates, and is easily digested.

IRON Pyrophosphate of Iron (used in this remedy) does not injure the teeth, increases the red corpuscies of the blood, and gives greater strength to all the tissues of the body.

People suffering from Dyspepsia, Blood-Disorders, Fennale Complaints, Malaria, and Lorens of Nervous Froubles, will find Dr. Henley's Goler, Beef and from these series, current and best Nervine and Genral Tonic that can be obtained or used.

It is not a cure-all, nor is it recommended as such. It is compounded of the valuable remedial substances from which it takes its name and which are always prescribed by physicians in their daily practice. A fair trial will convince the most skeptical.

PALTIMOPE, MD. EXPURGATED VERSION

OF NATIONAL HYMN Declared to be Adopted for Literary Reasons-People

Stirred Up.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Patriotic citizens rouncement that it has been deemed advisable by the powers that be to furnish the children of the elementary public schools of this city with an expurgate version of "The Star Spangled Banner." In the "History Reader for Elementary Schools," the third stanza, beginning "and where is that band who so vauntingly swore" is not included, nor is Mrs. Mary Walker Chamber- there any foot note explaining that it has been left out. Superintendent of Schools Maxwell said: "No special action was taken by the Board of Education when it adopted the reader. I now under stand that the third stanza was omitted by the publishers purely for literary reasons." Mr. Maxwell's secretary enlarged upon

Mr. Maxwell's secretary enlarged upon this statement, saying:
"You see, the metre in the third stanza of the hymn is very defective. It is a particularly hard verse to memorize for that very reason, and children would have great difficulty in learning to sing it. Not one person out of a hundred knows the stanza. The report that the stanza was omitted in the version given in the reader because of an Anglomania tendency on the part of the board is untrue."
